W.R. WILLIAMS CRASHES AUTO INTO POST

Avoids Hitting Machine
Coming from Side Street

NO SERIOUS INJURIES

Shortly after 3 o'clock on Sunday afternoon W. R. Williams of Williams Bros. Store had the misfortune of an automobile accident while in Waukegan.

Mr. Williams was driving his Nash sedan south in County street at that time. Another car, driven by a woman, was coming east on Grand avenue. Both drivers apparently felt that they had the right of way. Williams explaining later that he expected the machine approaching from his right to stop and allow him to pass. Instead the car from the west, having the right of way, did not pause.

Too late to stop his own machine and being unable to go to the other side of the road on account of a machine coming from the opposite direction, and with but alternatives of smashing into the other car or taking the chance of wrecking his own car alone, Williams chose the latter and swerved sharply to the east. He missed the auto driven by the woman but his own car struck the telegraph pole at the side of the road.

The name of the other driver was not obtained as she did not stop to ascertain the amount of damage done.

In the car with Mr. Williams was his wife and his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Williams, and Mrs. William Gray and her grandson, William.

Mrs. E. B. Williams received a slight cut on her lip by glass from the windshield and Willie Gray was bruised in the chest, but not seriously. The others of the party were not injured.

The car was but slightly damaged and was removed to a Waukegan garage, and the occupants of the car returned to Antioch with Tom Gray, brother of William Gray.

Womans Club to Meet on November 6

Don't forget the date of the next meeting of the Woman's Club, Monday, November 6th, at 3:30 p. m. A few changes have been made in the program as given last week.

The address, "The Schools and the Community," scheduled to be given by Miss Alice Smith, has assumed the dignity of a discussion, subject, "What Our Schools Have a Right to Expect from the Community" vs. "What the Community Has a Right to Expect from the Schools."

The discussion will be led by Superintendent L. O. Bright for the schools, and Mrs. Della Matthews, for the community. Both speakers are too well known to need an introduction to an Antioch public. The club members may look forward to a fair and able presentation of a subject of interest to all.

Hostesses—Mrs. Bartlett, Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Ziegler.

Fire at Evans Home in Trevor On Monday

About 11 o'clock Monday night fire broke out in the basement of the Will Evans home at Trevor. A number of the construction crew of the Rutledge Company were passing at the time in two automobiles, and noticing the fire, stopped and gave assistance. They soon had the blaze under control, and although the Antioch Fire Department made an exceedingly fast run to the Evans home, and did much in handling the blaze, the construction crew had the fire in check. The fire, starting in the basement had burned the basement staircasing and was starting on an upward trend before being noticed by the family. Upon discovering the blaze a rush to the street was made in nightgowns when the two automobiles came upon the scene.

Some twelve years ago Otto S. Klass left his native town of Frankfort, Ky., and left one of his best boy pals, Louis Crutcher. Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Klass took a trip to Kenosha and who should they meet but Mr. Crutcher and his wife. The party drove back to Antioch where the day was spent talking over "old times." Mr. and Mrs. Crutcher have been living in Kenosha about three years. Mr. Crutcher is employed at the Nash factories.

PHELPS-WINCH CASE DECISION IS RENDERED

Damage Suit Must Be Won
Before an Injunction
Can Be Made

COURT UPHOLDS CASE

Despite reports published in various papers the last week in regard to an injunction having been placed against the Channel Lake Pavilion, Mr. C. A. Phelps, a well-known lawyer of Chicago, and prominent resorter of this section, takes occasion to deny it in the following communication to this paper:

Antioch News
Gentlemen:

Some of the Chicago newspapers reported that the case which was brought by Mrs. Glennon, Mr. Karg and myself against Mr. Winch was decided in our favor by the Appellate Court. A number of the residents of Channel Lake called my attention to this report.

For your information, I wish to say that the Appellate Court, in their opinion filed October 25, 1922, held that we would have to bring a suit at law and recover damages against Mr. Winch before we would be entitled to an injunction, and affirmed the decision of Judge Edwards of the Circuit Court.

Very truly yours,
(Signed) Chas. A. Phelps.

Kids Have Fun, But Few Franks Are Displayed

Hallowe'en pranks played by the children, as well as a few grownups, were very mild this year in comparison with past years. Although tribes of kids, estimated at about 75 to 100, were visiting all the stores marking the windows with soap, the chief sport seemed to be rolling the barrels of tar, used on the new road, down Main street.

The boys would get a barrel of tar, and starting at Orchard street, would start the barrels rolling down the incline toward Depot street. By the time it reached Depot street it would be travelling at great speed. Constable Stanley Thompson soon put a damper on the fun for fear it would injure some of the smaller boys if it came in contact with them. The big boys, mostly high school lads, also had their fun, but had to pay the penalty. The boys dumped a barrel of oil on the sidewalk on North Main street and later had to come back with brooms and mops and clean up the mess. Several of the boys were accompanied by their parents, and after the cleanup were made to go home.

A large number of parties were held where Hallowe'en games were played, but as a whole, as stated in the first paragraph, it was a very mild year.

SUNDAY SERVICES:
 Sunday School 9:45
 Morning Service 11:00
 Epworth League 7:00
 Evening Service 7:45

The evening Church service at 7:45 is being transformed into a completely new type. The plan is for a special community program every Sunday evening, featuring something different each week. It will be well to watch for announcements from week to week.

This coming Sunday evening's program will be a sacred concert rendered by the best musical talent in Antioch, with an interpretative rendering of Henry Van Dyke's literary masterpiece, "The Source."

The Sunday morning sermon theme will be, "Who Was Melchizedek?" This great mystery has puzzled millions of people. It will be brought out that its solution flings a whole flood of light upon several large fields of thought, and reveals new glories in the great world plans of God. The entire morning service will be rich with the best things to be found in the world. Eleven is the hour and all are cordially invited.

Everybody, old and young, should be in the Church School at 9:45. The new worship service in the several departments of the School are very impressive and full of religious feeling. The high school group is taking form and gathering impetus, and is expected to be doing things on a scale that will be very much worth while. Their program will include the following activities:

- 1—The Sunday morning Worship and Study Period at 9:45.
- 2—The Sunday evening Worship and Study Period at 7:00, especially to train the members for leadership. This Sunday evening Period may, at times, include a social half hour at the beginning.

3—A Recreational and Social Program to meet all the needs of the group which are not being met by other agencies.

4—A Program of Service Activities which will train the members of the Group for the life of efficiency in service to God and humanity.

Miss Baxter has been here again for one day's work with the teachers and groups, materially helping to get the new regime into operation.

The Church on the Hill LAKE VILLA

The harvest of 1922 is almost gone, and before it is entirely past, we desire to devote one Sunday to the spirit of the Harvest. Come and bring your friends to the services of the "Church on the Hill" next Sunday. The subject will be "The Harvest." Special music by the girls' choir. As this has been a bountiful year for fruit, offerings for the Lake Bluff orphanage are being collected, and if you have any to send, please bring it to the parsonage as soon as possible. Some has already been sent in, and more is ready, so add yours to the collection and help to make a glad Thanksgiving for them as well as yourself. It is more blessed to give than to receive, we are told.

OH—WELL—

A young woman, having decided that it was just at present the fashionable thing to know all about business and town industries, was being shown through a garter factory.

"Goodness!" she exclaimed, "ninety thousand pairs in one week! I don't see where they all go!"

"Neither do I," replied the young man who was guiding her, coloring slightly.

REGULAR SERVICES

Holy Communion as per announcement.

Last Sunday was the Twentieth Sunday after Trinity and all the services were well attended. The session of the Church School was especially well attended. It is a real inspiration to have a good Church School. In the Church School besides the regular lessons, Mr. Brock explained the system of Church vestments which people misunderstand so many times. The reason the officers of the Church wear badges and insignia of their office is the same reason that officers of the United States army wear insignia, to distinguish them from the enlisted men. They are the outward and visible sign of the commission and authority they have received from God, just as the army officer's uniform represents the government that has commissioned him.

Wednesday of this week is Saints Day, and although there can be no service in St. Ignatius' Church the people are asked to remember the day in their devotions and prayers.

The Halloween party for the Church School was held last Saturday evening in the Guild Hall, and a good time was enjoyed by all who were present.

Next Sunday is the Twenty-first Sunday after Trinity, and there will be Church School as usual at 9:45 and Morning Prayer and Address at 11:00. At the latter service there will be special music and a solo by Mrs. James E. Bell, sister of Mr. Brock. Mrs. Bell has had a splendid musical education and she spent three years in study in Germany before the war. It is really a very rare opportunity that is coming to the people of Antioch. Everyone is invited to attend this service. The organ music will be furnished by Mr. D. L. McTaggart. Mrs. Bell was formerly Miss Ruth Brock, and at present resides at Mount Kisco, New York. She is at present visiting friends in Oak Park.

SPECIAL SOLO AT ST. IGNATIUS' CHURCH

Next Sunday, at 11:00 a. m., there will be a special musical service at St. Ignatius' Church. At that time there will be a solo by Mrs. James E. Bell, sister of Mr. Brock. Mrs. Bell is an accomplished musician and has spent many years in study. Before the war she spent three years in Berlin, Germany, in musical study. She has sung for several years in churches and has done considerable concert work. This is a very rare opportunity for the people of Antioch and the public is most cordially invited to attend the service and hear Mrs. Bell sing. Mrs. Bell is visiting friends in Oak Park, and for that reason is able to spend this Sunday with us, although her home is in Mount Kisco, New York. You are invited to attend. Come and bring your friends.

STARTLING, BUT TRUE

"I saw a man in the town," said Bill, "who must have been nearly seven feet high—the tallest man I have ever seen."

"That's nothing," replied Bob. "I have a brother twelve feet high."

"Bill looked incredulous."

"Fact," said Bob. "I have two half brothers, each measuring six feet."

THE FIRST ONE!

The other day two ladies, one of whom was very deaf, were walking by the railway. Suddenly an express train rushed by, and as it passed the engine gave a double shriek that seemed to rend the sky. The deaf one turned to her friend and remarked with a happy smile: "That's the first cuckoo I've heard this year."

Fate Takes a Hand.

Life has many embarrassing moments, but this was truly a dreadful one. I was a senior in a large university, and had had a romance with a prominent classmate. After our engagement was broken we were not on speaking terms, and this was generally known.

One evening I had been studying at a table in the library reading room when the lights went out. I stood up and collided with some one. I instinctively threw out my arms, and he did likewise.

Of course, the lights went on suddenly, and I found myself embraced and embracing my ex-fiance. Every one saw us, and we made quite a scene trying to get out.—Chicago Tribune.

"Land of El Dorado."

The word is Spanish and means "the gilded one," because the early explorers thought there was an Indian chief somewhere in South America who used to cover himself all over with gold dust at a religious festival once a year. Now the name is applied to any country where there is supposed to be an abundance of valuable natural products.

Mr. Thompson brought us a load of coal Friday.

We attended the lecture given at the Crystal Theater and enjoyed it very much.

The first and second grades are making books called, "Things I Like."

Those perfect in attendance last month were as follows: Alice Westman, Hildreth Westman, Willie Dorsey, Dixon Vose, Jack Westman, Frances Perry and Linnea Westman.

The basket social that we had here in the school last Friday evening was a great success. There was a large crowd and the people said that they enjoyed the program. We had about seventeen boxes and after paying expenses we cleared the sum of $25.45. We are going to get a pencil sharpener, a dictionary, a kettograph and other articles that we need with the money.

Lake Villa School

PHILIP SIMPSON, Editor

Mr. Manzer visited the school Friday, Oct. 13, and gave the seventh and eighth grades a delightful talk on checks and promissory notes and other banking terms.

The seventh and eighth grades have started a Christmas savings account. Mary Elizabeth Williamson was elected treasurer for it. We have a banking hour every Wednesday morning. Each pupil has a card on which he keeps a record of the deposits and balances for himself. In this way both seventh and eighth grades will learn more about banking.

The school house and buildings are being repaired. The barn is replaced by a new one, the teeter totters have been replaced by new boards, and the indoor toilets are done except for the boys.

The Lake Villa school is getting a new set of Zane Grey's books and a group of reference books. Marie Nader is president of the library and Maurice Keller is the assistant. They are numbering all of the books and putting them in order and cleaning the shelves. The girls are in the library during their 90 minutes study period. We may not be able to get books for a month yet.

The seventh and eighth grades held a general assembly. The seventh grade represented the House of Representatives and the eighth represented the House of Senate. Each house passed a bill.

The seventh and eighth grades have drawn leaves of ten trees and fruits each for their agriculture study.

Friday we started studying the survey system in civics. We just finished studying the different kinds of government.

Friday, in grammar time, in the seventh and eighth grades, the girls wrote a paragraph on "Why I'd Rather Be a Girl," and the boys on "Why I'd Rather Be a Boy." Some of the compositions were read and a heated discussion followed.

Those having a perfect attendance for the month are Jane Almborg, Daisy Ehrenborg, Dorothy Hanson, Caroline Petersen, Bertha Sebor, Lena Sebor, Hilda Tweed and Mary E. Williamson.

On Monday, Oct. 25, there was a meeting held at Barnstable hall about "Health." There was a clown entertainer who was very funny and made the children laugh. Everybody enjoyed it.

Everett Fish was absent three days on account of sickness.

Margaret Drago had the misfortune to break her wrist.

The fourth grade just finished making spelling blanks for perfect lessons.

Tardy marks seem to be the fad in the intermediate grades. Grady Gordon and Everett are spending their recesses learning "Abou Ben Adhem." Ask them why. Perfect attendance! Tessie Koelstra, Ethel Brompton, Helen Williamson, Russel Boehm, Olive Rhoades, Beulah Wickens, Margaret Drago, Jackie Fish, Anna Nader, Edward Burnett, Clyde Helm, Joe Drago, Gordon Hamlin, Ruth Avery, Bernice Gordon, Ruth Rhoades, Ruth Perry, Avis Hanson.

ELSIE COX, Editor

Those perfect in attendance for the month of October are: Emil Hallwas, Sam Klass, Elsie Cox, Louis Klass, Theodore Vander Spoel, Hazel Andersen, Harold Gelden, Stella Sheehan, Gorman Andersen, Dorothy Hughes, Helen Martin, Robert Sheehan, Raymond Gelden, Robert Hughes, Ruth Nelson, Minnie Ruschewski, Myrtle Nelson, Hilbert Vander Spoel, Dick Vander Spoel, Holger Christensen, Esther Andersen, Elmer Sheehan, Dorothy Nelson, Joe Sheehan, Ruth Hughes, Dorothy Jarling and Bernice Palmer.

Mrs. Betsy Sheehan, mother of Eugene Sheehan and Will Sheehan, of Lake Villa, Mrs. Hutchinson of Libertyville and Mrs. Roy Fairman of Antioch, passed away at the latter's home Wednesday morning after a long illness. She is one of the pioneer residents of this district, having lived here over eighty years.

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen and family of Waukegan visited friends at Loon Lake Sunday.

(By Emil Hallwas)

All the pupils of Oakland school went to Lake Villa Monday afternoon.

We went on Dan Sheehan's hayrack.

On our way there the wheel came off the hayrack. The boys soon fixed it and we went on to Lake Villa to Barnstable hall. Many children were there, but we got seats.

The first man spoke about health. He told how the milk contained germs and that it should be heated to kill the germs. He said that a supid child was not healthy and could improve his studies by taking care of his health.

The next man who spoke was Dr. Smith, a dentist. Pictures of the teeth were shown and he explained each one. He showed the proper way to brush the teeth.

After this was the Jolly Jester riding a horse's head mounted on a pole. He called his horse "Dobbin." He said Dobbin was hungry so took him to a corner of the room where he gave him oats.

Then he brought out a carrot. The mouth of the carrot was fixed so it would move. The clown held it in his hand and talked so that you could hardly notice his lips moving. At the same time he moved the mouth of the carrot to make us think that it was the carrot and not him talking.

He imitated the chicken and then went and brought out a fresh egg.

Next he brought out a doll named

"Harry." He placed him on the table and sat beside the table holding him. He threw his voice to make us think the doll was talking. He asked it many questions. As the jester talked about milk the doll would turn his head and looked at the bottle of milk standing on the table.

After this motion pictures were shown of sick people. They showed the health nurse visiting each home and caring for the people during an epidemic of influenza. The health of the community was safeguarded by means of this nurse. This was the last picture. Then as we passed out of the door to go home a tube of tooth paste was given to each one.

On our way home we talked over the program. Everyone appreciated and thank Mr. Simpson for his thoughtfulness in giving us such an entertaining program. We enjoyed every number and wished there might be other such interesting talks during the year.

WEATHER BUREAU STUDIES TO IMPROVE ANEMOMETERS

Through studies conducted by the weather bureau of the United States department of agriculture, with the cooperating of the bureau of standards, much information useful in the design and construction of anemometer instruments for measuring wind velocities has been obtained. The relation between cup movement and actual wind movement, heretofore known confidently to about 50 miles an hour, is now known to 113 miles an hour.

Tests on about 30 instruments of various dimensions, proportions, and weights have been made in the wind tunnels of the bureau of standards at velocities ranging from 5 to 60 meters per second. Certain of the instruments tested in the wind tunnels have been taken to Mount Washington, N. H., for comparison in the very high natural winds prevailing there. When these free-air comparisons are completed and the data have been analyzed, an improved standard anemometer recording true velocities will be developed and corrections determined for records of velocity already compiled.

TRUNK CALLS

A fidgety old gentleman at a railroad station was terribly afraid he might lose his baggage, and during the time he was waiting for his train continually worried the busy porter, much to the latter's annoyance.

"Porter, be sure that my trunk is safe," said the old gent.

"All right, sir," replied the porter, sharply.

A few minutes later the worrying passenger again approached.

"Porter, don't forget my trunk."

"All right, sir," replied the man, still more viciously.

Yet a third time within ten minutes: "Porter, now be quite sure my trunk is safe."

"Begorra," roared the thoroughly exasperated porter, "it's a pity you wasn't born an elephant, instead of an ass, then you would always have your trunk under your nose."

Improvement in Reindeer Herds

L. J. Palmer, in charge of the government's reindeer experiment station at Nome, Alaska, has just sent in a report to the United States department of agriculture that conditions among Alaskan reindeer herds are the best this year in the history of the industry. The fawn crop has been unusually large, and favorable conditions have greatly reduced the ordinary losses. Herd owners who have adopted recommendations of the biological survey for improved handling of the herds report marked gain in size and condition of animals, and a reduction in the losses from those experienced under former methods. Reindeer introduced two years ago on Nunivak Island are doing remarkably well, with the young much larger in size than animals of the same age on the mainland.

QUALITY CLOTHING

URGENT SUPPLY OF PURE MILK FOR SCHOOL CHILDREN

Now that milk is served in many public schools throughout the country, the United States department of agriculture suggests that inspectors should make frequent visits to the schools to see that the milk is of good quality when delivered and that it is handled and served in a sanitary manner. Inspectors in those cities where milk is not served in the schools are urged to advocate the adoption of the plan.

One of the duties of the inspector is to see to it that the milk does not stand for some time before being used. A good plan is to have it delivered just at lunch time, or, if this is not convenient, to see that there are facilities for icing and storing it. By taking samples at frequent intervals a close check can be kept on the methods of handling.

Milk for use at schools should always be put up in bottles to reduce the chances of contamination. Before the bottles are opened the tops should be thoroughly washed. Because glasses and cups may not be kept clean, it is best for the milk to be drunk directly from the bottle. The use of sipping straws is very satisfactory. Some dairies use special protective caps on bottles of milk sent to schools.

GROWTH OF FEDERAL-AID ROADS

More than 1,000 miles a month has been the rate of growth of completed Federal-aid roads during the present working season, says the bureau of public roads, United States department of agriculture. The mileage completed on Aug. 31 totaled 19,308, of which 6,401 miles have been added since the beginning of the year. On the same date there was under construction 14,670 miles. Federal-aid roads in all stages, from approved projects to completed roads, now total 41,405 miles, or 23 percent of the system of highways being outlined by state and federal engineers to serve the whole country, and which will consist of approximately 180,000 miles.

DAIRYMEN FINANCE LOCAL FIGHT ON TUBERCULOSIS

In Lyme township, Huron county, Ohio, owners of dairy cattle organized an association through which they financed their own campaign against tuberculosis when state and federal indemnity funds had run out. The members were assessed $2 a head for grades and $4 a head for purebreds, one-fourth being used for organization work and the rest for paying indemnities. The association has tested 83 herds containing 662 cattle, 26 of which reacted. The owners of the reactors received the salvage value of the animals and a straight indemnity of $20 a head for grades. For purebreds the indemnity was doubled. About 85 percent of the herds in the township were tested.

The organization of this association indicates the anxiety of many progressive dairymen to get rid of the cattle plague. These Ohio men might have waited for more funds to be appropriated by the state and congress, but they felt they could well afford to pay out the money themselves to hurry the work and advertise their locality as free of the disease.

MOST UNUSUAL

The recruit was weighted down with orders by the sergeant major when he went on guard. He was told to be sure and turn out the guard for any unusual occurrences. So at 10 p. m., as the sergeant major came smartly through the gate, the recruit turned out the guard.

When the sulphurous atmosphere had cleared a little and the recruit was allowed to speak, he reported his reason for turning out the guard.

"Unusual occurrence," he said, "sergeant major in barracks at 10 p. m. Sober."

SYNOPSIS.—To the Kentucky wilderness outpost commanded by Jerome Sanders, in the time immediately preceding the Revolution, comes a white boy fleeing from a tribe of Shawnees by whom he had been captured and adopted as a son of the chief Kahtoo. He is given shelter and attracts the favorable attention of Dave Yandell, a leader among the settlers. The boy warns his new friends of the coming of a Shawnee war party. The fort is attacked, and only saved by the timely appearance of a party of Virginians. The leader of these is fatally wounded, but in his dying moments recognizes the fugitive youth as his son. At Red Oaks, plantation on the James river, Virginia, Colonel Dale's home, the boy appears with a message for the colonel, who after reading it introduces the bearer to his daughter Barbara as her cousin, Erskine Dale. Erskine meets two other cousins, Harry Dale and Hugh Willsburg. Duelling rapiers on a wall at Red Oaks attract Erskine's attention. He takes his first fencing lesson from Hugh. Yandell visits Red Oaks. At the county fair at Williamsburg Erskine meets a youth, Dane Grey, and there at once arises a bitter antagonism between them. Grey, in liquor, insults Erskine, and the latter, for the moment all Indian draws his knife. Yandell disarms him. Ashamed of his conduct in the affair with Grey, Erskine leaves Red Oaks that night, to return to the wilderness. Yandell, with Harry and Hugh, who have been permitted to visit the Sanders fort, overtake him. At the plantation the boy had left a note in which he gave the property which is his as the son of Colonel Dale's older brother, to Barbara. The party is met by three Shawnees, who bring news to Erskine (whose Indian name is White Arrow) that his foster father, Kahtoo, is dying and desires him to come to the tribe and become its chief. After a brief visit to the fort Erskine goes to the tribe.

On the seventh day he was nearing the village, where the sick chief lay, and when he caught sight of the tepees in a little creek bottom, he fired his rifle, and putting Firefly into a gallop and with right hand high, swept into the village. Several bucks had caught up bow or rifle at the report of the gun and the clatter of hoofs, but their hands relaxed when they saw his sign of peace. The squaws gathered and there were grunts of recognition and greeting when the boy pulled up in their midst. The claps of the chief's tent parted and his foster-mother started toward him with a sudden stream of tears and turned quickly back. The old chief's keen black eyes were waiting for her and he spoke before she could open her lips: "White Arrow! It is well. Here—at once!"

Erskine had swung from his horse and followed. The old chief measured him from head to foot slowly and his face grew content:

"Show me the horse!"

The boy threw back the flaps of the tent and with a gesture bade an Indian to lead Firefly to and fro. The horse even thrust his beautiful head over his master's shoulder and looked within, snorting gently. Kahtoo waved dismissal:

"You must ride north soon to carry the white wampum and a peace talk. And when you go you must hurry back, for when the sun is highest on the day after you return, my spirit will pass."

And thereupon he turned his face and went back into sleep.

Just before sunset rifle-shots sounded in the distance—the hunters were coming in—and the accompanying whoops meant great success. Each of three bucks carried a deer over his shoulders, and foremost of the three was Crooked Lightning, who barely paused when he saw Erskine, and then with an insolent glare and grunt passed him and tossed his deer at the feet of the squaws. The boy's hand slipped toward the handle of his tomahawk, but some swift instinct kept him still. The savage must have had good reason for such open defiance, for the lad began to feel that many others shared in his hostility and he began to wonder and speculate.

Quickly the feast was prepared and the boy ate apart—his foster-mother bringing him food—but he could hear the story of the day's hunting and the allusions to the prowess of Crooked Lightning's son, Black Wolf, who was Erskine's age, and he knew they were but slurs against himself.

Fresh wood was thrown on the fire, and as its light leaped upward the lad saw an aged Indian emerge from one of two tents that sat apart on a little rise—saw him lift both hands toward the stars for a moment and then return within.

"Who is that?" he asked.

"The new prophet," said his mother. "He has been but one moon here and has much power over our young men." An armful of pine fagots was tossed on the blaze, and in a whiter leap of light he saw the face of a woman at the other tent—saw her face and for a moment met her eyes before she shrank back—and neither face nor eyes belonged to an Indian. Startled, he caught his mother by the wrist and all but cried out:

"And that?" The old woman hesitated and scowled:

"A paleface. Kahtoo bought her and adopted her but"—the old woman gave a little guttural cluck of triumph—"she dies tomorrow. Kahtoo will burn her."

"Burn her?" burst out the boy.

"The palefaces have killed many of Kahtoo's kin!"

A little later when he was passing near the white woman's tent a girl sat in front of it pounding corn in a mortar. She looked up at him and, staring, smiled. She had the skin of the half-breed, and he stopped, startled by that fact and her beauty—and went quickly on. At old Kahtoo's lodge he could not help turning to look at her again, and this time she rose quickly and slipped within the tent. He turned to find his foster-mother watching him.

"Who is that girl?" The old woman looked displeased.

"Daughter of the white woman."

"Does she know?"

"Neither knows."

"What is her name?"

"Early Morn."

Early Morn and daughter of the white woman—he would like to know more of those two, and he half turned, but the old Indian woman caught him by the arm:

"Do not go there—you will only make more trouble."

He followed the flash of her eyes to the edge of the firelight where a young Indian stood watching and scowling:

"Who is that?"

"Black Wolf, son of Crooked Lightning."

"Ah!" thought Erskine.

Within the old chief called faintly and the Indian woman motioned the lad to go within. The old man's dim eyes had a new fire.

The Squaws Gathered and There Were Grunts of Recognition and Greeting When the Boy Pulled Up in Their Midst.

"Talk!" he commanded, and motioned to the ground, but the lad did not squat Indian fashion, but stood straight with arms folded, and the chief knew that a conflict was coming. Narrowly he watched White Arrow's face and bearing—uneasily felt the strange new power of him.

"I have been with my own people," said the lad simply, "the palefaces who have come over the big mountains, on and on almost to the big waters. I found my kin. They are many and strong and rich. They, too, were kind to me. I came because you had been kind and because you were sick and because you had sent for me, and to keep my word."

"I have seen Crooked Lightning. His heart is bad. I have seen the new prophet. I do not like him. And I have seen the white woman that you are to burn tomorrow." The lad stopped. His every word had been of defense or indictment and more than once the old chief's eyes shifted uneasily.

The dauntless men of the boy, his steady eyes, and his bold truthfulness, pleased the old man. The lad must take his place as chief. Now White Arrow turned questioner:

"I told you I would come when the leaves fell and I am here. Why is Crooked Lightning here? Why is the new prophet? Who is the woman? What has she done that she must die? What is the peace talk you wish me to carry north?"

The old man hesitated long with closed eyes. When he opened them the fire was gone and they were dim again.

"The story of the prophet and Crooked Lightning is too long," he said wearily. "I will tell tomorrow. The woman must die because her people have slain mine. Besides, she is growing blind and is a trouble. You carry the white wampum to a council. The Shawnees may join the British against our enemies—the palefaces."

"I will wait," said the lad. "I will carry the white wampum. If you are against the paleface on this side of the mountain—I am your enemy. If you are with the British against them all—I am your enemy. And the woman must not die."

"I have spoken," said the old man. "I have spoken," said the boy. He turned to lie down and went to sleep. The old man sat on, staring out at the stars.

Just outside the tent a figure slipped away as noiselessly as a snake. When it rose and emerged from the shadow, the firelight showed the malignant, triumphant face of Crooked Lightning.

CHAPTER VIII

The Indian boys were plunging into the river when Erskine appeared at the opening of the old chief's tent next morning, and when they came out icicles were clinging to their hair. He had forgotten the custom and he shrugged his shoulders at his mother's inquiring look. But the next morning when Crooked Lightning's son Black Wolf passed him with a taunting smile he changed his mind.

"Wait!" he said. He turned, stripped quickly to a breech-clout, pointed to a beech down and across the river, challenging Black Wolf to a race. Together they plunged in and the boy's white body clove through the water like the arrow that he was. At the beech he whirled about to meet the angry face of his competitor ten yards behind. Half-way back he was more than twenty yards ahead when he heard a strangled cry. Perhaps it was a ruse to cover the humiliation of defeat, but when he saw bucks rushing for the river bank he knew that the icy water had brought a cramp to Black Wolf, so he turned, caught the lad by his topknot, towed him shoreward, dropped him contemptuously, and stalked back to his tent. His mother had built a fire for him, and the old chief looked pleased and proud.

"My spirit shall not pass," he said, and straightway he rose and dressed, and to the astonishment of the tribe emerged from his tent and walked firmly about the village until he found Crooked Lightning.

"You would have Black Wolf chief," he said. "Very well. We shall see who can show the better right—your son or White Arrow"—a challenge that sent Crooked Lightning to brood awhile in his tent, and then secretly to consult the prophet.

Later the old chief talked long to White Arrow. The prophet, he said, had been with them but a little while. He claimed that the Great Spirit had made revelations to him alone. What manner of man was he, questioned the boy—did he have ponies and pets and jerked meat?

"He is poor," said the chief. "He has only a wife and children and the tribe feeds him."

White Arrow himself grunted—it was the first sign of his old life stirring within him.

"Why should the Great Spirit pick out such a man to favor?" he asked. The chief shook his head.

"Crooked Lightning has found much favor with him, and in turn with the others, so that I have not thought it wise to tell Crooked Lightning that he must go. He has stirred up the young men against me—and against you. They were waiting for me to die." The boy looked thoughtful and the chief waited. He had not reached the aim of his speech and there was no need to put it in words, for White Arrow understood.

"I will show them," he said quietly. When the two appeared outside, many braves had gathered, for the whole village knew what was in the wind. Should it be a horse race first? Crooked Lightning looked at the boy's thoroughbred and shook his head—Indian ponies would as well try to outrun an arrow, a bullet, a hurricane.

A foot-race? The old chief smiled when Crooked Lightning shook his head again—no brave in the tribe even could match the speed that gave the lad his name. The bow and arrow, the rifle, the tomahawk? Tomahawks and bows and arrows were brought out. Black Wolf was half a head shorter, but stocky and powerfully built. White Arrow's sinews had strengthened, but he had scarcely used bow and tomahawk since he had left the tribe. He had the power but not the practice, and Black Wolf won with great ease. When they came to the rifle, Black Wolf was out of the game, for never a bull's-eye did White Arrow miss.

"With a gesture Pontiac bade Crooked Lightning speak."

BIRD IS FAST ON ITS FEET

California Roadrunner Famous for its Custom of Sprinting in Front of Trotting Horses.

A bird known as the California roadrunner has earned his common name from his delight in sprinting along roadways, especially when pursued by horsemen or moderately slow-going vehicles. In the picturesque old days of California it was no uncommon sight to see this bird running a half-mile or so in front of fast-trotting horses.

Another common name, chaparral-cock, is given in allusion to his living in the chaparral of the semi-deserts. The bird belongs wholly to the West. Formerly he ranged from the plains of Kansas to the chaparral-covered hills of the Pacific coast and he is rapidly becoming rare. He is built like a heron, except for his short legs, but, unlike that water-loving bird, chooses deserts for his home. He has wings, but scarcely has the power to fly, though he is one of the fleetest of runners.

PLAN TO CONTROL WEATHER

Scheme Has Been the Dream of Many Scientists, but Nothing Practical Has Been Evolved.

Three or four years ago a Sheffield (Eng.) workman claimed to be putting the finishing touches to an instrument to enable him "to focus beams of ether oscillation" and so control the weather. Unfortunately, the instrument could not have been so perfect as he thought, for nothing further has been heard of it. Before that a Leeds scientist had come to the conclusion that it was "within the scope of human possibility to prevent disastrous cyclones, hurricanes and storms, and even to improve permanently the weather of the British Isles." The idea was the production of an instrument enabling the operator to collect or disperse the molecules which form the atmosphere, securing the degree of density desired and so arranging the best weather required for any district or seasonal occupation. More than twelve years ago Sir Oliver Lodge demonstrated that fog could be dispelled by electricity, though the process was too costly for adoption generally.

COAL OF VEGETABLE ORIGIN

Abundant Proof That Huge Forests, In Former Epochs of the Earth, Became Petrified.

Although in most instances there are comparatively few traces of its vegetable origin left, coal owes its existence to the vast masses of vegetable matter deposited through the luxuriant growth of plants in former epochs of the earth's history, and since slowly converted into a petrified state.

Coal fields today present abundant indications of the existence of huge ancient forests, usually in the form of coal formed from the roots of trees. Several such forests have been uncovered, one of which in Nova Scotia is a good example. Remains of trees have been found there, six to eight feet in height and four feet in diameter. In a colliery in England, in a space of about one-quarter of an acre, there have been found the fossilized stumps of 73 trees, with roots attached, and broken-off trunks lying about, one of them 30 feet long, and all of them turned into coal.

Some people are unable to pocket their pride because they haven't a pocket large enough.

Proposed New Addition to Lake County Court House

Lake County is now paying rent for offices for the States' Attorney, County Superintendent of Schools, Board of Review and during a part of the year for the extra force of clerks used in extending taxes in the County Clerk's office.

In addition to the expense for rent there is a large amount of time lost in having a part of the books in the Court House and a part scattered in outside offices, even now, with these extra offices rented, the offices in the Court House are so crowded that the work is done at a great disadvantage and waste of time.

The vault in the County Clerk's office is so filled with files and records it is necessary to pile them up on tables, if any one wishes to examine any of them they must be carried in to the Supervisor's room or wherever they can find a space around the building to lay them down. The same condition exists in the County Treasurer's office and the public is greatly delayed in payment of taxes and transacting other business on account of lack of space for the clerks to work.

In the Circuit Clerk's and Recorder's office, where all the records of real estate are kept, the condition is still worse. There are about 800 volumes of books and records and shelves for about 600, which makes it necessary to pile about 200 on the floor, and whenever one is needed it is sure to be near the bottom of the pile. If this condition continues the books will be worn out with handling, so it will be necessary to have many of them rebound within the next few years, at an expense of from $8000 to $10,000.

The Recorder now has eleven clerks, there are always six and frequently eight abstractors at work in his office making 18 or 20 people working in two rooms and vault, besides attorneys and others examining records so that they all work at a great disadvantage being in each other's way.

This office will be divided in 1924, thus making it necessary, if no addition is made to the Court House, to rent some large building and at the county's expense build a vault to accommodate one of these offices and preserve the records.

The County Clerk's office will be divided on the first Monday of December, 1922, and the Probate Judge and County Judge will be obliged to use one room for holding court and the Probate Clerk will be obliged to have his office with some of the other offices.

The proposed addition will more than double its capacity and make ample room for all of the offices for at least the next twenty-five years. Three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000) extended over twenty years will amount to only $15,000 per year, which, with the large valuation of the County, will not be noticed by any tax payer. The County has been levying $21,000 per year for the last few years for building fund for various purposes, so that the tax will not be much as it has been except for the item of interest, which will not amount to as much as the rent now being paid.

It is proposed under the tentative plans submitted to the County Board of Supervisors by the Architect, Mr. Herbert P. Beers of Highland Park, Ill., that in the proposed addition which will be built on the West of the present Court House, that the sub-basement will include coal and boiler rooms.

The first, or ground floor, will include an apartment for the janitor, Sheriff's office and storage vaults.

The second or main floor will contain County Treasurer's and County

Clerk's offices and record vaults.

The third floor will contain the State's Attorney's office, County Court room, Judges Chambers, Jury Room, Board of Supervisor's room, with necessary committee rooms, which may also be used as jury rooms, when necessary.

The fourth floor will contain Probate Court room, Probate Clerk's office jury rooms, jury dormitories and Law Library.

Elevator service, toilets, etc on each floor.

The proposed addition will be of brick and stone construction, fire proof throughout and will conform to the style of architecture of the present building.

The building of this addition will in no-wise interfere with the working conditions in the present building as the only change contemplated in the old building is the placing of the elevator and staircase in the southwest corner, now occupied as County Judges Chamber.

The architect has found after making a thorough investigation, that the present building is in excellent condition.

Negro Farmers Make Progress

St. Marks community, Lee County, Ark., furnishes an example of substantial progress made by negro farmers who have benefited from agricultural extension work. According to a report received by the United States department of agriculture, of 75 families in this community, 50 own their own farms, comprising 3,500 acres valued at about $200,000. In accord with the safe-farming system advocated by extension workers in southern states, these families for the most part raise food and feed sufficient to meet the needs of themselves and their stock each year by growing corn, legumes, hogs, poultry and good gardens. In addition to their cotton crops.

SEEDSMEN ABROAD SEE VALUE OF UNIFORM TESTING METHODS

Leading seed merchants of European countries that export seeds to the United States recognize that the harmonizing of the work of the seed-testing stations in those countries and closer cooperation with the stations in this country and Canada will greatly facilitate international trade in agricultural seeds, says Edgar Brown, in charge of the seed-testing laboratories of the United States department of agriculture, who recently returned from Europe where he visited the principal seed-testing stations in Denmark, Czechoslovakia, Switzerland, France, Holland and Great Britain.

Following the recommendations of the International Seed Testing Congress, held in Copenhagen in June, 1921, modifications in the methods of testing are being made to insure closer agreement in the results of analyses made by the different nations. All countries, except Ireland and Canada, are now using the same method of making purity tests of grass seeds. Methods of making germination tests vary, but as the result of close cooperation results are rapidly becoming more uniform.

In all of the countries, with the exception of Germany, practically all seed-testing is centralized at one station. The greater part of the commercial work in Germany, especially in connection with the export and import trade in forage plant seeds, is done at Hamburg. Most of the stations in Europe are housed in modern laboratory buildings designed for their special use and fitted with modern equipment.

CLOSE COOPERATION NEEDED IN PREDATORY ANIMAL WORK

"Where there is close cooperation between the federal and state governments, predatory animal and rodent extermination work is very much more effective," stated Dr. A. K. Fisher of the Biological Survey, in representing the United States department of agriculture at the seventh annual convention of the Sheep and Goat Raisers' Association of Texas, at San Angelo, Tex., this summer. There should be better cooperation, particularly in the matter of appropriations, so that the largest amount of money available from both federal and state sources may be obtained, he pointed out.

"Although rodent work is not so spectacular as destroying wolves, mountain lions, or coyotes," Dr. Fisher declared, "stockmen are beginning to realize that the damage on their ranges from these little animals is very considerable, and in some cases more than equals that of the predatory animals. The Biological Survey considers that these two branches of work should go hand in hand and that states usually should appropriate about the same amount for each activity."

"The department believes that if the prairie dog alone were exterminated over its entire range, which is economically possible, 4,000,000 more cattle and 4,000,000 more sheep could be raised on that area, due to the increase in the supply of forage."

"Records of the Biological Survey show that in Texas its hunters, cooperating with the State agencies, have killed about 20,000 predatory animals, aggregating a saving of over $2,700,000. Of the total of 17,500 wolves and coyotes captured, more than half had records as killers. Close cooperation of the states with the bureau of biological survey will relieve stockmen of much worry and pecuniary loss through more adequate protection given to their flocks and herds."

A ride in a Lincoln is one continuous trip of comfort and enjoyment. Changes in road conditions bring scarcely any perceptible difference in the smoothness with which your car travels.

Rear springs shackled at both ends; final drive through a torque tube; combined with superior control of the motor power itself, afford a master sense of security in any driving emergency.

DAIRY COW NOW BIG FACTOR IN PROSPERITY OF OKLAHOMA

A recent map of Oklahoma indicating by marks of various shapes the location of cream stations, ice cream factories, creameries, pasteurizing plants, and combination plants, shows the dairy cow now as a big factor in the prosperity of the state. Formerly, on account of the cattle tick, such a development of dairying was impossible, but the antitick activities of the state and the United States department of agriculture for the past six or seven years have resulted in the eradication of the pest from 43,255 square miles, or about 90 percent of the infested territory.

As a result of these strides in eradication the figures on dairy production show large totals, and in 1921 milk and butter were important products. During that year 9,339,896 pounds of butter fat in the form of sour cream was produced, selling for a little more than $4,000,000, and 9,529,722 pounds of butter, valued at $3,240,000. More than 10,000,000 pounds of sweet milk was bought for making ice cream. Pasteurizing plants reported handling 62,261,983 pounds of milk. The figures are from reports received from 26 creameries, 44 ice cream plants, and 30 combination plants operating in Oklahoma or just outside its borders and buying from Oklahoma farmers.

Before the cattle tick was attacked in earnest dairying in the state was of very little importance.

A PLEASANT SURPRISE

Mrs. McTavish met Mrs. Brown on a country road near a Scottish town. The former was carrying a queer-looking parcel and Mrs. Brown inquired as to its nature.

"Oh, aye, it's just some ham for McTavish. I always buy my ham frae Sandy, in the town. McTavish likes his ham better than any other."

"Indeed so? Well, my mon is verra fond o' ham. I'm thinking I'll be getting some for him at Sandy's."

Arrived in the town, she called at Sandy's provision establishment and demanded a pound of ham.

"Oh, the same kind of ham that ye serve Mrs. McTavish wi'!"

"Ah rest!" said the grocer, adding in a whisper, "whaur's yer bottle?"

Melne, former Minister of Agriculture of France, has been president of this international commission since 1908. The United States department of agriculture has for many years Dr. D. E. Salmon having been a member until 1908, when he was succeeded by Dr. L. O. Howard. Dr. A. C. True was added in 1911, and ex-Secretary Meredith in 1919.
